Domain:
Written presentation

Benchmark:
Present information on limited content, supported by visual aids

Description:
In this task, pupils are asked to prepare individual contributions for a class recipe book. The recipes should include the ingredients, equipment, and correctly sequenced instructions. Pupils should also illustrate their recipes appropriately.

Rationale for choice of topic:
Every child knows how to make some kind of food or drink, even if it is only how to mix chocolate milk or dilute juice. The topic offers pupils an opportunity to use English for presenting prior knowledge. It also facilitates multiple outcomes.

Suggestions for implementation (prior to and/or during):
Review command form and practice sequencing. Have pupils practice giving one another different kinds of instructions, such as where to find something, how to play a game, or how to get from one place to another. Read recipes in class to familiarize pupils with the genre. You may want the class to practice making something simple from a recipe. Focus on recipes that are easy to follow and can be described in only three or four steps, for example, recipes for fruit salad or a sandwich.

Note: Assessment of this task should not be based on pupils’ artistic abilities.

Note: It is very important to teach pupils how to use a checklist before they are given this performance task.

Suggested time allotment:
One lesson

Prerequisites:
- Knowledge of the imperative (command form)
- Familiarity with food and kitchen vocabulary
- Familiarity with sequencing
- Familiarity with the genre of recipes

Good!

I see that you want to make cocoa balls. You wrote most of the ingredients and the kitchen tools in the right places, except that sugar is an ingredient. You wrote what to do in the correct order:

Remember: Start each sentence with a capital letter and end with a period. For example: Put the margarine in a bowl.

Crumble the biscuits.

Your picture is nice.
