Domain:
Written presentation

Benchmark:
Produce a short piece of coherent writing that conveys personal experiences

Description:
In this task, pupils are asked to write a short passage about a strange, unusual, or funny thing that happened to them. The passages are to be collected in a book, which will then be sold to raise funds for the English library.

Rationale for choice of topic:
Telling stories with strange or amusing elements is a familiar and engaging gateway to the use of English.

Suggestions for implementation (prior to and/or during):
Have a class discussion about what makes a story strange or funny. You may want to have pupils read stories with surprise endings or comic elements. Ask pupils to relate strange, unusual, and funny stories. Practice telling stories in first person, either in writing or orally. Explain the difference between a story told in first person and a story told by a narrator. During implementation, encourage pupils to develop their stories as much as possible.

Note: It is very important to teach pupils how to use a checklist before they are given this performance task.

The Car

One day, one year ago, I went to my cousin, Odi. After, my mother call me and ask me back to my home. I went. One the way, I see a car. The car slowed. And slowed. And slowed... I was scared. I runed to my home very fast. From my luck, I see my father.

I say to my father it:

This thing was very scary.
The book
